Note: There was some talk of doing two pages so as to keep the member information separate from the opinion information. I don't remember where we landed on that issue after all of the discussion. I personally don't feel it necessary, but I don't care which way you decide to run it.

It will end up being two pages when it is spread out to leave room for answers on some of the questions. I left it as is at the moment so that you can do spacing when this issue is settled.

Note: There was some talk of doing two pages so as to keep the member information separate from the opinion information. I don't remember where we landed on that issue after all of the discussion. I personally don't feel it necessary, but I don't care which way you decide to run it.

It will end up being two pages when it is spread out to leave room for answers on some of the questions. I left it as is at the moment so that you can do spacing when this issue is settled.
